

Forward, proceedings of 3rd MMM Conference

MAGNETISM today is moving forward at an ever increasing rate. Its importance is felt on a wide scale, and through its impact on technology it significantly affects the patterns of our society. Recent years have witnessed a rapid increase in the use of Magnetism and Magnetic Materials has grown to such proportions that it is being recognized as a major force in planning the next century. In fact, the 1967 Conference, held in Washington, D. C. November 19-20, 1967, was made to attract "papers dealing with the basic concepts of magnetism and magnetic materials, with emphasis on potential engineering applications, and with the development of magnetic materials for use in the field of electronics, physics and engineering and in the field of magnetism and to provide stimulation for people with differing interests, ranging from basic research to practical application. A study of the Conference Proceedings, set forth on the following pages, demonstrates that the Conference succeeded in accomplishing these central aims.

Since this was the third Conference on Magnetism and Magnetic Materials to be held in the United States, it has recalled the status of an annual event. It is hoped that the next international forum devoted to this subject will be held in the United States in 1970. The 1967 Conference having a representation from five continents. The Conference was again sponsored by the American Institute of Physics in cooperation with the American Physical Society, the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers, the Institute of Radio Engineers, and the IEEE. The 1967 Conference was the attendance at the 1967 Conference (from 480 to 700) was the highest ever recorded (from 900 to 130) exceeded that of all previous years.

4th MMM Conference

C. H. J. VAN DER BEEK (1928-1968) was established at about 800. However, even though attendance in 1968 was only 500, the number of papers presented was 100. The main reason for the increase in the number of papers presented was the fact that the program was more diversified and more interesting to a wider range of scientists.

SESSION III-A MICROMAGNETIC DOMAIN AND RESONANCE (Invited Paper)

D. M. METZGER, IBM Research Center, Yorktown Heights, New York

Several innovations resulted in the 1968 Conference. A High School Science Day was held in conjunction with the 1968 Conference. This was a well-organized series of exhibits and demonstrations which were held in the Sheraton Hotel. The program was more diversified and more interesting to a wider range of scientists.

People increased since a large deficit was incurred by the Conference. Most of the new costs were covered by the Sheraton Hotel. The program committee was successful in securing credit for its excellent work.

6th MMM Conference

AFTER the past several years, it is an appropriate time to take stock of the progress of Magnetism and Magnetic Materials. In order to do this, it is necessary to look back at the progress of the field in the past several years. The progress of the field in the past several years has been remarkable.
